I am an insulin dependent diabetic, arthritic, and suffer from Gran Mal seizures. For some 25 years I have provided my own counsel on medical matters. Only in the most minimal degree have I sought the services of a licensed physician, only for the prescriptions for Phenobarbital and Dilantin. Occasionally I have had to subject myself to an examination to get the medication, but I have not sought nor accepted their advice.

On the 10th of Nov. I was declared criminally incompetent to manage my medical affairs. I suppose that, considering I was my own physician, and offered my services to NO one else, I was convicted of administering an unauthorized medicine - to myself! There was no complaint from the patient, but the state has acted on its own volition.

This being the case, I fear that the state is taking on an awesome and difficult burden. A 10% overmedication with one of my medicines, a product of the earth and available over the counter (insulin), and I would be dead in a matter of hours of insulin shock (hypoglycemia) were I not to have access to other products of the earth - carbohydrate foods.

If I am under-medicated by 10%, I will drift into diabetic acidosis and be seriously damaged or die in a few weeks. My eyes, kidneys and extremities will be at risk at a minimum.

Likewise, food, carbohydrates particularly, are a problem. In my insulin dependent condition, food is not LIKE medicine - it IS medicine. I do not operate on a fixed schedule, and much of my food intake is on an as-needed, when needed basis. Should I fail to eat enough carbohydrates at the proper time, I will die or be brain dead by hypoglycemia immediately. If I'm fed too much carbohydrate, I will drift into acidosis.

I have little or no knowledge of how to prevent seizures without the use of cannabis. Dilantin has serious side effects, including rashes, headaches, neurological disturbances, and elevated blood sugar. It is synthetic, and is damaging to kidneys and the liver. The process of determining the proper amount is often discovered by trial and error ... error resulting in Grand Mal seizures. Even levels needed to control severe seizures are toxic.

Phenobarbital is another synthetic, a hypnotic, and highly addictive. It is toxic to the liver and kidneys. Proper dosage is again a matter of trial and error. Excess dosage results in severe physical dependency ... a drugged condition.

I cannot in good conscience lend my opinion to the state in managing my illnesses. If they place me on probation I will be subject to piss tests and I am not going to tamper with the regimen which prevents my seizures and maintains proper blood sugar levels. Their piss tests will show this. Suggestions?

Who's On First

Over recent weeks Mike Vanderboegh has been publishing information concerning an Aryan Connection to the bombing of the Murrah Building in Oklahoma City. At least one of Mike's sources is personally known to me, and I believe the information that he has provided concerning the so-called Aryan Connection.

This additional information does nothing to discredit Mike's John Doe series. What it does is raise the veil on a well-protected connection. It is easy to pick on the Aryans. Usually, it is easy to pick on Arab or Muslim terrorists.

When government patently ignores very relevant and credible information tending to establish a connection between Aryans and Middle Eastern terrorists in a domestic terror bombing which took scores of innocent lives, it rings alarm bells for me.

Does government just have such a grudge against angry white guys that they would pass up the opportunity to expose a Middle Eastern terrorist cell or group? Or Aryan terrorists? I don't think so. I think (hope) the FBI would have the terrorists of whatever stripe locked up.

If they are ignoring (as I know they are) a Middle Eastern Connection and an Aryan connection to prosecute two white guys, I want to know why.

Could it be that there is a CIA connection as well? Is there a Good-O'Boy Connection, a network of business and arms money and government skullduggery at work? I think so. I almost am confident enough to say I know so; but not quite.

That is why I want Congress to engage in Real investigation of OK C. Put someone in charge who will ramrod the thing and get it going, and look at everything. As it stands, it is the Kennedy assassination all over again. Witnesses are frightened to death, sometimes literally. The Clinton administration has operated to cover up and confuse So Many issues - time has come for there to be a serious, credible investigation and subsequent revelation of ALL the facts of this case.

By the way - what determination was ever made concerning the leftover leg found in the wreckage of the Murrah Building? Did it fall into the bottomless memory hole like the many reports of Middle Easterners involved in this tragedy.?

Just remember, people, Terry Nichols was definitely a long way from OKC when the bomb was left at the Murrah building. Does anyone really believe that McVeigh did it all by himself, and then drove away? The FBI and Department of Justice evidently do. How about you?
